kenzo kusuda in collaboration with takako hamano*

exhibition runs until 19 december 2009

Takako Hamano draws scenes from our daily world. Reality and imagery comes together in her delicate drawings to add another dimension of 'depth'. Hamano is interested in the different environments of people where memories, social and cultural links comes together, beyond time and space.

The book 'Mirrored Memories' that recently has been presented in the SieboldHuis at Leiden, is the starting point for her exhibition: 'Satchan's midnight garden'. The unique three part structure of outLINE which consists of a middle part with central dome and the 'mirroring' wings inspired her to transform the space in a three-dimensional book. 'Satchan' plays an important role in the exhibition. She is a sort of mythological character/girl that you could find worldwide in tales from all times in all cultures. In the 'midnight garden Satchan' reads the book and fantasies about the world of 'Mirrored Memories'. In an installation of drawings, textworks, animations, sounds, wall drawings and spatial objects the viewer is taken by surprise in a sensory paradox of fantasies, mirroring and variations of the past and present.

Takako Hamano [Japan, 1975] lives and works in Amsterdam. She studied sociology in Japan and art at the Gerrit Rietveld in Amsterdam. She has shown her work at the SieboldHuis [Leiden, 2009], De Kaap [Utrecht, 2008], Yoshiko Matsumoto Gallery [Amsterdam, 2007] and Castello Svevo di Bari [Italy, 2005]
